Greely, of the Tribune, rejoices greatly over the recent Abolition victories in Ohio and Pennsylvania. If it were only a party victory, this jubilation would be in order; for Greely & Co. have won a party triumph. But upon the theory of Greely & Co., it seems to us the result is nothing to cheer the heart of a patriot. These Abolitionists have persistently held that their opponents were rebels; that they were opposed to this Union and willing to let it slide. Their whole party ammunition has been drawn from this magazine. Their opponents are opposed to the Union, ready to surrender to the rebels, and rather disposed to help them, giving them aid and comfort. Now, if this theory be true, the poll-books show hardly—about 200,000 rebels in Ohio and 250,000, more or less, in Pennsylvania! It is not much consolation that there is a small per cent. of a majority of Union men. Small majorities are not much in revolutions. These majorities have not only to conquer the rebels in arms, but also these heavy minorities at home, of men who, in the vocabulary of the majority, are even worse than rebels. To be sure, here at home, this view of the case satisfies no one, for the charge made and the whole theory is only a party lie, and everybody knows it; but if the charge persistently made by these Abolitionists is believed in other countries, the result will be anything but encouraging to the Union cause.

The truth is, there is no party North that is not for the Union. The only difference is in the means of preserving it. Because the minority hold that the means of these Abolitionists are not adopted to the end, they are called traitors. These Abolitionists assume their judgment as to the means infallibly right, and all who do not endorse and apply them are traitors. On this distinction they claim all the loyalty and all the patriotism. There is no doubt of their devotion to their party means to put down the rebellion; but their devotion to the Union is a new agony. They are zealous for the Union, if they do believe the Union a glorious Government worth fighting for, that conviction is a little one with them. They didn't think so before the war. Our Government, in their opinion, was vicious and could not stand. It contained a great infidelity, which made it odious of God and offensive to all good men. What has induced these men to fall so much in love with the Union, and denounce men as Disunionists whom they used to denounce as Union-savers with sneering sneers?

In the meantime, Greely & Co. should now climb down and admit that the contest was on the means of preserving the Union, not the end; that their opponents are as patriotic as themselves, but are opposed to their party ends and schemes. It is enough that their party scheme have got a majority. They had better rest on that and quit lying. Their opponents must have a bad record if it is not better than any these radicals can show. Whilst Democrats had power they preserved this Union in peace. Now their opponents have the responsibility; let them boast when they have accomplished the end. Until then they should be modest, if they could live and be modest.

Intelligence received in this country goes to show that, although the French have succeeded in seizing the Capital of Mexico, they have by no means overcome the Mexican people. They do not subscribe to that policy which has sold the country to the French, but are arousing the people everywhere against the invaders. It is evident that the French will still have to cope with a spirit of resistance and determination far more powerful than they have yet met with. In all places not occupied by the French in force, recruiting is going on with rapidity, and every effort to organize the new levies is being made. They are laying aside their sectional and political quarrels, and are banding together to support their Government. They have dispatched a Minister Plenipotentiary to our Government, to look to the interests of the Republic with this its most natural ally. Our interests in the Monroe doctrine with their own are the same, they have the right to expect and receive the greatest possible encouragement in our power to give. They are literally fighting our battles on their own soil, and it is a matter of congratulation to us that, although they have met with temporary defeat, they fight well and hardily. The battles at Puebla, in desperation, are second to none, but the bloody battles which our own singular war has produced, and with the increasing spirit of resistance to the conquest, we may hope they will succeed in expelling Napoleon from Mexico, or prolonging the contest until we can intercede decisively in favor of Mexican independence. It is likely that Napoleon, who seems to act upon the policy that victory is bound to his chariot wheels, will find that he has engaged in a rash and precipitate enterprise, and that he will find his Mecca in Mexico. No one can go long about the world without wrongs and redressing financial injuries, as Napoleon has done, without coming at last into collision with some one as prejudiced and as strong as himself, who will not allow Napoleon to be the sole judge of what is right. His uncle found his fate in the war with Pitt and England; and his nephew may find the like for himself in America.

All history teaches that to enslave and subjugate a people united and determined in their resistance, is almost impossible. The Greeks and Persians, the Dutch and Philip of Spain, the Americans and the British, the Spaniards and the elder Napoleon, all go to prove that when a people are united in resistance to oppression or invasion, their strength is incalculable.

Every weapon in such times is used, and used with a ferocity that makes us shudder. Guerrillas will prowl around the French army and outposts, cutting off supplies, snatching up outlying squads and storming and burning ill defended places. With our knowledge, too, of the characteristics of the Spanish race, we know that they will not be satisfied with legitimate measures of warfare. We recall the invasion of Spain by the elder Napoleon with a fine army, and how he was driven back by the infuriated people, who poisoned, burned and assassinated his fine troops in every conceivable way. In like manner, the invasion of Russia was the rule of the first Napoleon. Temporary success culminated in a disastrous rout, just as may result the Mexican invasion.

We can but admire, however, the wonderful achievements of Napoleon, and ascribe their frequent success to the inspiration of genius. A few years ago he was a homeless and friend-

The Trouble of Getting a Dinner in Switzerland.

A correspondent of the New York Evening Post, who is traveling in Switzerland, writes as follows:

"Americans, who are ignorant of European languages, traveling on the continent, often meet with annoyances; but they are seldom more important than the mistakes of the Germans who, in Germany thought that because beef was the best food, chicken must be sacrificed to the taste.

"I was yesterday by one of a party of American pedestrians arrived from a journey of two thousand years. All that he does is completely done. It is not both work.

"The very excess has rendered him drowsy and over-confident in the future. It's beliefs in his destiny. It supersedes that rashness which has so often been the destruction of conquerors before him. It has now undertaken the desperate task of providing a government for a people who are almost unanimously opposed to accepting any such favor from him. They feel that they have been deceived and sold to their enemies by the so-called convention of notables, and the betrayer has aroused them. Indignation rather than cowed their spirit. Then also they must feel that they have an ally in this country, which was the result of the cheering of the people. They cannot easily be intimidated with these guarantees of success, and we believe their salutation is almost an impossibility.

"We wish the telegraph would quit giving the opinion that Rossbach's army is safe, and that Meade's is safe and in a strong position.

"We started out to put down the rebellion, and the safety of our armies is not an answer to the purpose. The trouble is, that Lee and Bragg are also safe, whilst our armies are only safe. It is, indeed, better to be safe than worse off, but we are not advancing a step whilst we are only safe. The leaders of the rebellion started out for independence, and whilst our armies are only safe, they will listen only to independence. If we are to crush out the rebellion by mere force, then our safety is not progress. Whilst we are only safe, the enemy is entirely too safe for our purpose. These reporters should drop the word, for it gives aid and comfort to the enemy, and is not at all palatable to loyal people.

"We learn that Andrew Wilson and Isaac Clay, of Bourbon County, Ky., have returned home from the rebel army, taken the oath, and received pardon.

Mr. Chase on Foreign Affairs.

In a speech in Cincinnati, a few days ago, Mr. Chase touched upon foreign affairs. There is, perhaps, some significance in the following extract:

"We are showing our strength to the nations of the earth, and if we simply go on showing our strength, we will be nothing whatever.

"Our Government, in their opinion, was vicious and could not stand. It contained a great infidelity, which made it odious of God and offensive to all good men. What has induced these men to fall so much in love with the Union, and denounce men as Disunionists whom they used to denounce as Union-savers with sneering sneers?"

CITY NEWS.

The Races Yesterday.

In the sweepstakes stallion trot yesterday but two horses started—R. A. Alexander's stallion "Norman Temple" and Joseph B. Parks' "Edward Everett."

The horses were a long time getting off, and Edward Everett's mettle got up so that he would not settle to his work.

The race was a short one, and soon over—Alexander's stallion winning the race of the first heat—distancing Parks' horse. Time 2:40.

In the sweepstakes for mares and geldings, three years old, there were three entries—by Messrs. Dorsey, Alexander and Lewis. The latter paid the forfeit, and but two horses started in the race.

In the betting, Alexander's horse was the favorite, but Dorsey's was not without his friends.

In the first heat the race was spirited, and although Alexander's horse came first to the score, it was plainly to be seen that when both were fairly at their work, Dorsey's bay could outfoot the sorrel, but when he went up he lost badly before he could be got back to his work. First heat to Alexander's sorrel. Time 3:00.

In the second heat they got off together, and soon the sorrel went up, but settled—losing nothing by his break. Dorsey's bay passed him, but got off his gait, making a bad break and losing all the time. At length he settled and gained upon the sorrel until he got nearly up with him, when he again went up and lost ground. The heat was an exciting one, Alexander's horse coming in as easy winner in 2:55½.

The programme for to-day's races is as follows:

PRIEST RACE.—Sweepstakes for stallions, 4 years old—mile heats; $100 subscription, $20 forfeit; Association to add $100, provided two or more start; three entries.

R. A. Alexander names b. h., by Pilot, Jr.

L. M. Lewis names b. h., by "Lumber."

Dorsey's Race.—Mile heats—any double team that can be put together; purse $30; three entries.

W. D. Lewis names b. m. and ch. m.

S. B. Lewis names b. and g. m.

J. W. Shockney names b. and g. m.

Pat. Dizayn and Wm. Lowry, both stealing lard and bacon from Mr. Dunn; held in bail to be good behavior.

Ben. Harris and Mrs. Breeden, disorderly conduct, and Harris carrying concealed a weapon; continued until to-morrow.

WOOD'S THEATER.—On the occasion of Miss Kate Denin's benefit on Friday evening, this popular place of amusement was crowded to its utmost capacity to witness the performance of the great sensational play of the "Hidden Hand." The fact that many ladies have been unable to obtain admission induced the managers (in compliance with numerous requests) to offer the same piece for repetition on last evening, which drew together another overflowing house, and this result has justified the announcement of the same drama for the third time, after which, we are informed, it will be laid aside for the production of other novelties. Sam Ryan'simitable representation of his original part of Wool, and Miss Denin's chaste and beautiful personation of Capitola, is well worth double the price of admission.

We were shown two beautiful samples of fruit yesterday by Capt. B. J. Coffey, of our city. One, a winter pear, weighing 13½ ounces, raised by A. Hubbard, near Carlisle, in Clinton county, Illinois. It is about the largest pear we have ever seen—well formed and perfectly sound. We have also a large red winter apple from the farm of N. B. Fowler, of Clinton county, of an unknown variety to us. It is nearly as large as the Gloria Mandi, and looks though it would be an excellent keeping variety.

Walker's omnibus line will run regularly daily during the races for Woodlawn, leaving the Louisville Hotel, at Walker's City Exchange and the Galt House, at 2 o'clock p.m. Fare, fifty cents. Those desirous of attending the races will find this a cheap and convenient conveyance.

LOUISVILLE THEATER.—To-night Miss Susan Denin makes her second appearance in the character of Nancy Sykes, in the drama of Oliver Twist. From what we know of Miss D., we can safely predict an overflowing house.

GOOD TOBACCO.—Eight bushels of tobacco, grown by Sam. Woolridge, of Christian county, sold yesterday, at Spratt & Co.'s warehouse, at an average of twenty dollars per one hundred pounds.

OUR ONLY BUCKSHOT, our famous Washington correspondent during the winter of 1860 and 1861, was in the city yesterday as large as life and twice as natural. We tender him the freedom of the city.

THE indictment against Abram S. Montgomery, of Christian county, for high misdemeanor, was dismissed on Saturday last in the United States Court now in session in this city.

John Kobhep, of Walker's City Exchange, has the bar at Woodlawn and is prepared to accommodate the public with anything in the refreshment line.

Persons who are recognized to appear before the grand jury will take notice that the grand jury will meet this morning at 10 o'clock.

The notorious guerrilla chief Dick McCaugh was brought to the city last night by the Nashville train.

We are indebted to Mr. Carr, express messenger, for a copy of the Nashville Press of yesterday.

Omnibuses leave the Galt House for the race course to-day at 10 o'clock.
